THE AMERICAN ELM IN THE SOUTHWEST

Our native American Elm is still our most beautiful and stately avenue tree. This, however, is true only when all the trees along the avenue or street are of the same general shape and habit of growth. The best type is the perfect vase-shaped tree with branches well distributed. Elm trees grown from seed show much variation in shape, vigor, time of budding out, and form of branches as slender, graceful, heavy, crooked or weeping. Pruning can never make a lot of seedlings uniform. The photo on the left shows the extreme variation of four trees grown from seed. The only method by which trees of uniformity can be grown is by budding or grafting from one selected individual outstandingly superior tree as discussed below.

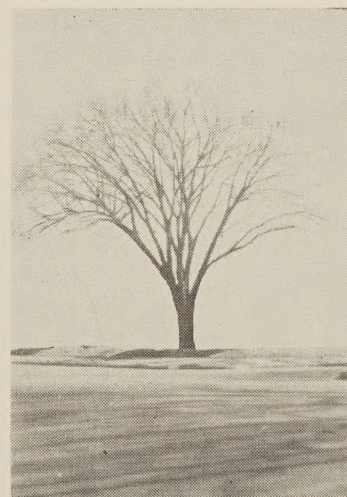

THE CLASSEN ELM S

After several years of research, study, and inspection, five superior individual elm trees have been selected from among the finer old native Oklahoma Elms planted along the streets of Oklahoma City. These have been tentatively designated as Classen Elm numbers 1 to 5 inclusive.

We are firmly convinced that superior strains of American elms will contribute much toward Civic Beauty and highway improvement. Experiments and studies are under way to improve various other trees, fruits and ornamentals. As our contribution towards improvement in avenue planting we are not restricting the propagation of these five superior strains of elms. The price of these trees for one-year buds on transplanted American elm stocks is $2.00 each. They are from 5 to 8 feet tall. Only a limited number of these trees are available this year. See photos of Classen Elm numbers 1 and 2 shown here.

WELL - ROOTED TREES AND PLANTS

Nursery craftsmen know the importance of good roots on all classes of nursery stock. The soil at The Classen Company Nursery produces plants with exceptionally good roots. Even such tap-rooted plants as pecans and walnuts produce numerous feeder side-roots as shown in the cuts on these pages. Stock with superior roots is not only profitable to the retailer, but also to the customer who plants such stock. We are exerting our efforts to do our share to truly "make America more fruitful and beautiful."

FALL PLANTING

Oklahoma Nurserymen together with County and State "Tree-minded" agencies are sponsoring a "FALL PLANTING" campaign. Fall planting is best for most nursery stock; gives best results to the planter and "spread-the-season" profits to the retailer or landscape contractor. Ease the "spring rush." Sell and plant all you can in the fall and prolong it throughout the winter months.
